

Tuesday September 9, 2008

YEOHLEE: Armed with a strong focus this season, Yeohlee Teng showed a solid directional collection. She elaborated on her architectural slant and, much to one's surprise, added a new dimension to that clever cutting: she's gone girly, sometimes downright sexy. The designer charmed with boldly draped and ruched blouses; unlined fishnet dresses and a second-skin skirt with translucent crescents. Her classics, too, were beautifully interpreted for spring in black-and-white washed silk organza: a cocoon-curved coat and a knockout strapless cube dress with black crescents.